PARKER NOTIFIED HE IS NOMINATED

(Morning News, September 25)

After being formally declared the nominee of the Democratic party of the First Congressional district for re-election to congress, Gen. Homer C. Parker, of Statesboro, yesterday morning renewed his pledge to Congress.

It offers a fine opportunity for teachers who need additional credits in order to renew or raise their certificates, and also for those who have been forced to discontinue their college attendance. The courses carry regular college credit and are taught by members of the regular college faculty. Courses in education, history, English and sociology are among those offered. Prof. Alvin A. Singlet, of the education department, is organizing the classes in this section. In addition to the extensive courses, the college will handle all correspondence for this section.

Tifton and Its Environs

Just as there are people who are not to be fully measured by their inches or weight or their years, so are there communities which are not measurable by the number of people or houses or acres of land.

Tifton, the capital of Tift county, is one of those communities which has that intangible something about it which goes far beyond all the ordinary visible measurements. Tifton has that element which has been vaguely defined as "It," and which element is felt and seen on every hand.

This observation follows a visit, with the Georgia Press Association, to Tifton and its environs for a three-days' session last week.

When you speak of Tifton's environs, you take in more than mere territory—you include other progressive and delightful municipalities whose citizens are so similar to those of Tifton that you understand readily why that section of Southwest Georgia has found an important place in the sun.

Georgia editors held the first session of their annual convention at Tifton on Monday evening of last week. It was purely a social get-acquainted function. Mid-day of Tuesday was the Times' first contact with the assembly and the hospitality of Tifton people. For the next forty-eight hours there was no let-up in the display of that spirit which makes communities stand out in advance of their neighbors.

Dr. Branch, at the South Georgia College for Men, was host at the luncheon which induced this scribe into the whirl which was to follow. The visit to this college was a revelation. Preceding the luncheon, a sight-seeing trip was made over the grounds of the two colleges which adjoin. This of itself was an education. Broad acres of fertile lands, checkerboarded with various experimental plots, gave evidence that the agricultural phases of education are being adequately cared for.

At the dining hall there was a luncheon served at the hands of the student body, young men who were partly paying their way through college having every detail of the service. Dr. Branch and Director Starr were in a happy mood, and gave evidence of their just pride in the school which means so much for the section it serves. Both these gentlemen gave interesting figures of the growth and purposes of their school, showing an enrollment in excess of two hundred boys. No girl students are domiciled on the campus, though they are accepted as day students and many come in from the surrounding territory daily.

It was Tuesday afternoon that Tifton hosts headed, with their guests, for an afternoon and evening of joy with their neighboring cities of Moultrie and Adel. At Moultrie Editor Allen and his associates took charge and a sight-seeing of the city ended with an inspection of the mammoth packing plant. Special hours had been adopted for the day so that the visitors might see the actual work of slaughtering and curing meat. It was the day in which the city was being hatched, and the plan was an interesting sight as the large carcasses were trundled into view.

Moultrie concluded her contribution to the occasion with a delightful luncheon at the school house in which the beauty and civility of the city co-operated to make a delightful social function.

From Moultrie to Adel, according to the road markings, is 23 miles. At the moment, however, there were road improvements in progress and the detours brought the mileage up above the thirty-mile mark. The roads were not as bad as they would have been with another quart or two of water. It had rained some during the morning and the clay roads were highly conducive to side-slipping, though no mishaps were reported.

Adel is one of the remarkable cities of Southwest Georgia. Editor Shytle certainly didn't build the city by himself, for it is not the work of any one man. He had hearty co-operation and his associates were by his side on the roof of the three-story watermelon building Tuesday night when the editors reached Adel. Mayor Parrish presided at a delightful function in the open air. Three beautiful girls danced, and their contribution, aside from the music and speech-making, made another memorable occasion. A slight shower came, sufficient to run the party indoors, but there was no dampening of the enthusiasm or cordiality of the reception.

Back to Tifton at 11 o'clock and

Congressman Parker's son, William, who will be 16 today, was introduced by D. B. Turner, editor of the Bulloch Times. The congressman also will celebrate his birth anniversary today. He was born on September 25, 1885, in Balley, Appaling county, Georgia. By the way, the Times is informed that it had a balance of $207 in the treasury and it was ordered that all expenses had been paid the remainder would be returned to the candidates. Gen. Parker spent $4,068.25 in his campaign for re-election, according to his expense account filed in record with the law. All was his personal money, he having returned with his thanks all contributions from friends.

In addition to talks by Col. Myrick and Col. Stovall, talks also were made by J. O. Strickland, of Louisiana; Robert Humphrey, of Emanuel county; Miss Jennie Dawson, of Wayneboro; Edward H. Robertson, of Effingham county; Middleton Davis, of Darien; Joseph B. Fraser, of Hinesville; Leroy Cowart, of Statesboro; and W. W. Warnock, of Montgomery county.

Miss Stella Klein, secretary of the party's state executive committee, urged all Democrats of the district to attend the state convention in Macon on October 4, when Senator Allen W. Bradley, of Kentucky, the national convention keynote, will make an address. The invitation was extended in a letter read by Mr. Cox.

A group picture was taken following the meeting and members of the committee then adjourned to the hotel's Jung room where they were luncheon guests of the nominees.

This affair was most thoroughly enjoyed. After partaking of an excellent meal before which Rev. John S. Wilder had asked the blessing, Frank M. Oliver, who had been head of Gen. Parker's Savannah committee, acted as toastmaster. Mr. Wilder had also made a talk, and left immediately afterward because he had a most important engagement. In fact, Parker Wilder was to marry a couple, and after so saying was released from further attendance at the dinner because of that. He made a talk, however, which brought a big response, and in which he extolled the congressman's qualities.

Mr. Oliver started out pretty well as a toastmaster by making a speech himself, and it began to look as though the toastmaster was going to take up all the time of the oratory. But Mr. Oliver had a legal engagement which required his attention, and Editor Dave Turner of the Bulloch Times, assumed the role of toastmaster for the remainder of the session.

Every county in the district was heard from. Some of them were heard from once, twice and thrice during the day. And everybody had a hopeful message or a laudatory one. Representatives of those counties that failed to go for Gen. Parker admitted their mistake and promised to show the ladies into his column in unmistakable fashion when the general election came in November. Some of the speakers brought friends along who spoke for them.

The ladies attending were more bashful about speaking than the men, but they were also far better liked than the men, which gave them a considerable advantage in more ways than one. Seated at the head table were Congressman Parker, Mrs. Parker, William Parker, the congressman's 16-year-old son, Toastmaster Turner, Col. Pleasant A. Stovall. Both the congressman and his son have birthday anniversaries today. There was a birthday cake with a number of candles on it, which gave one an idea that the congressman and his son had added their ages together and then divided the total in half and put that in the number of candles on the cake. Gen. Parker spoke briefly, thanking his guests and giving unstinted credit to those who had stood by him so staunchly.

"I am going to represent the whole people of the district," he said, "there are some questions that come up about which I am able to make a decision at once. I know what I ought to do. But if important questions come up that need an expression from my own people before I vote I am going to ask for that. I want to represent, of course, all the people of the United States, as a member of national welfare, but I represent first the people of my district and their wishes is what I shall attend to."

Gen. Parker did not name the new committee. This will be done soon after some more consideration. He expects to take a few days rest and then tour the district to meet the people once more, to thank them for nominating him, and to get closer in touch with their ideas and opinions.

BY THE WAY

(By EDNA PARRISH ROUSSEAU)

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24, 1932. The spotlight of philanthropy is again shedding its rays upon "The Forgotten Man." Governor Roosevelt would impress upon him that he is responsible for the destiny of himself, his family and the nation. As though admittedly the most neglected of all humans, it is his vote that has the most profound effect as to where he is placed in positions of power. "The Forgotten Man" is not a new phrase, nor was it coined for political purposes. A half century ago, noted opponent of socialism, Professor William Graham Sumner, of Yale University, in a treatise on "What Social Classes Owe Each Other," introduced the forgotten man, adding that although he never gets into control "He has to pay both ways."

Retiring from state politics in Louisiana, it is ten to one that Senator Huey P. Long has serious ambition to preside as "Kingfish" in the United States senate. The Long faction in that body is rapidly gaining ground. After having successfully aided Mrs. Hattie Caraway in her campaign for the senate, Long immediately returned to Louisiana and backed John H. Overton as against the present incumbent, Broussard, for nomination to the senate, and was again heralded victorious. Broussard was swept into political oblivion. Long is a gifted vote-getter, and is seen to it that candidates of his own choice are sent to the senate in and out of his home state. He has a will and a way. It is a native trait.

Now that the conquest of both the North and South Poles is complete, men are turning for their explorations to the stratosphere, or the aerial region beyond the 10 miles of atmosphere which envelopes the planet earth. Last year Professor Picard of Belgium reached the height of 50,000 feet in a balloon, and a few days ago made another ascent to a height of more than 10 miles. Rivalry is keen for the first to reach the real region above where the air is so rarified that the sufficient supply of oxygen must be provided for the explorer. It is believed that in such a region airships could move with terrific speed on account of lack of resistance, making it possible to fly from America to Europe in a couple of hours.

Young "Teddy" Roosevelt, the Governor-general of the Philippines, has been sent for by the administration to campaign for Herbert Hoover. The big idea of the Roosevelt activity in this campaign is to let the voters know that Franklin Roosevelt is not "a chip of the old Republican block." It is believed by political psychologists that the over-emphasizing of the un-Roosevelt relations of Governor Roosevelt will react as a boom-crang against the Republicans and excite public support and sympathy to the Democratic Roosevelt, who in vigor, honesty, intelligence and forthrightness is the greatest living Roosevelt, of whom the entire Roosevelt clan should be proud, but not on account of jealousy.

In Republican Kansas, always a hot-bed of politics, a Dr. Brinkley, Republican but running as an independent, is expected to be elected as governor. This man has been given advice to Kansas over the radio about rejuvenation through the use of goat-glads. He amassed a sizeable fortune and gained great popularity. He finally incurred the ire of the medical profession and lost of the government, and he had to remove his radio station across the border into Mexico. Since neither science nor Republican tariffs has yet found a way of keeping out wave vibrations "Goat-Gland" Brinkley continues his radio advice to Kansas, accompanied with a plea for their vote, which is taking effect.

Montagu Norman, the governor of the Bank of England, is in New York recently under an alias: "Professor Clarence Skinner." But his identity was soon revealed, giving rise to all sort of speculations as to his purpose in coming over. He saw the big bankers of New York, Ambassador Mellon and Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills. News has gone out that the matter of cancellation of debts and a new moratorium has been dealt with. It will be recalled that a new economic and monetary conference will be held in London this fall. The important international financial parleys have a way of cropping up when congress is not in session. It is hoped that the administration officials will not permit "Professor Skinner" to live up to his assumed name, for America must not be skinned by any nation.

ICEMAKERS TO AID BULLOCH FARMERS

for home consumption. It will be readily seen here that the farmer does not sell or have to take anyone's offered prices, but can ask or hold his meats for a fair price at all times.

This publication sees in this movement of curing Georgia and near-by states' meat the opportunity for Southern farmers to lift themselves by their own bootstraps, and millions of dollars that are annually sent out of this state for meat supplies can be retained here and put into other channels that will benefit our own people in a greater measure.

The Georgia agricultural department is endorsing this movement and encouraging a full attendance of its demonstration agents throughout the state.

Should there be more enlightenment required by some upon this all-important subject, the secretary-treasurer of the Georgia Ice Manufacturers' Association, Willshire Riley, 710 101 Marietta street building, Atlanta, will tell you that the meat curing in Georgia in the first year was near 100,000 pounds and this last year was over 11,000,000 pounds. The invitation to everyone that wants to help themselves and the Southern farmer to be present at this Statesboro meeting is extended as heartily as it may be received. You are invited to be there.

Singing Convention For Toombs County

Farm Credit Bank To Prove Big Aid

(By BASCOM ANTHONY, in Macon Telegraph)

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 26.—Business and agricultural leaders have expressed great gratification that Macon has been designated as the seat of an important branch of the new federal credit bank, to be established as part of the far-reaching program of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. While headquarters are at Raleigh, N. C., the Macon, Ga., office will have "virtually the same powers," according to Washington advice, and will serve a great portion of the Third Federal Land Bank district, including the Carolinas, Florida and Georgia.

Georgia, it is pointed out here, is fortunate in having been selected as an administrative center for so vital a part of the reconstruction program. As to farming interests will be extended largely through the system of agricultural credit banks, functioning at strategic points, north, south, east and west.

A NATIONAL CHARACTER
To those Georgians who supported Congressman Crisp in the recent primary and who recognized his standing as a national character, there is no surprise that he has so early been given recognition by appointment to a national position of commanding importance.
Prominence in national affairs is a place which is won only by merit. However few personally a character may be, he cannot attain prominence without at least some opportunity to establish his worth. Some men never attain real prominence even though the opportunity is theirs—it is a state which cannot be reached without ability to meet a situation in a big way.
Congressman Crisp has not suddenly come to be recognized as a big man. Through long years he has been growing that reputation—has been ripening into prominence. His appointment by the president to a position on the tariff board, a position of importance equal to any within the reach of importance to the nation, is not a mere morsel to assuage whatever feeling of humiliation may have come to him at the hands of an unappreciative clientele at home—it is entirely an award for merit displayed through long years of service to his nation.
We congratulate Congressman Crisp upon the appointment; we congratulate the state of Georgia upon this recognition of a worthy son, and we congratulate the nation upon the acquisition of the valuable services which will come at the hands of so valuable a statesman.

MINORITY CONTROL
Georgia owes it to herself to abolish the foolish county unit plan which prevails in her state primary elections.
There is not the slightest semblance of good reason for the adherence to a plan which can so easily defeat the will of a majority of the voters of the state.
Some time in the past there arose among some Georgians of the rural communities a sort of feeling that their voice was more entitled to be heard than their neighbors who live in the centers of population. They began to say that the small communities deserve to be protected from possible domination at the hands of larger and stronger communities. Thus it came about that a county with six hundred votes was given two votes in a convention while another county with thirty thousand votes was restricted to only six votes. By this method the vote of one man in the smaller county was given the force of seventeen votes in the larger county.
It was argued that a purer democracy comes from the less populous communities, and rural Georgians have permitted this travesty to continue as if there were justification for it to be so.
The requirements for qualified voters in each county in Georgia are the same. The man who qualifies for suffrage in one county has done as well legally as the man who qualifies in another, yet if he has many neighbors, he is handicapped to the point where his vote only counts for one-seventeenth as much as his rural neighbor's vote counts.
In county elections the entire county is the unit. A vote in one district is as good as another. In the election of a judge of the superior court a vote in one county effects another on equal terms.

TAXING THE RAILROADS
The cost of government takes one-third of our national income at present. In the case of some industries, it takes a good deal higher percentage than that.
The railroads are one of the worst sufferers. During May taxes absorbed 52.6 per cent of their operating income—whereas in 1913 the tax collector garnered in 12.6 per cent. During first five months of this year, taxes were 45.6 per cent of receipts.
This explains one of the main reasons why many railroads are just one step from the receiver. Government takes more and more of their money—and with that money it subsidizes waterways which take away their business, and in building roads over which their motor competitors maintain the bureau which regulates practically every phase of railroad operation, but does not extend similar regulation to their competitors.
Every informed citizen knows that railroad prosperity is essential to general industrial prosperity—that it is, in effect, a demand for the immediate payment of that portion of the certificates represented by the interest on the credits allowed for home and overseas service. This interest, in greater part, has not yet been earned and its payment at this time would increase the cost to the government by about $1,500,000,000 over the amount originally voted by congress to be paid.
"Third, because a yielding to this demand would mark a surrender of the interests of the public at large to the dictation of an organized minority."
The league said the question was not whether the bonus should be cancelled or repealed but "whether the holders of these contracts shall receive payment 13 years before maturity."
The league declared the bonus question was only "part of the vast and increasing expense of veterans' benefits" with $3,728,000,000 already paid out from the treasury for veterans of the World War alone and with annual charges "now reaching the $700,000,000 mark."
"About half of the current annual appropriation of $225,000,000 can be eliminated," the league said, "if benefits are restricted, as they should be, to the dependents of men who lost their lives in service, and to veterans who actually suffered disability through the war."

The Congress of Parents and Teachers again become sponsors for the Georgia School of the Air. The congress is interested in promoting fine arts in the schools, and in no way can this end be better met than through this avenue of radio. The 52,275 boys and girls that were enrolled in the membership last year had their minds directed through the daily program.
The night otherwise have interested them little, and that yet are a part of liberal education. The 1932 auditions begin October 1, 1932, and the Georgia congress will follow the presentations with interest.

ECONOMY LEAGUE
WILL FIGHT BONUS
STATEMENT ISSUED SAYS LEAGUE'S DEMANDS WOULD PROLONG DEPRESSION.
New York, Sept. 26.—The National Economy League Friday night said immediate payment of the bonus "would impose an intolerable financial burden on the country" and declared itself "unequivocally opposed" to the demand of the American Legion.
In a statement issued by Archibald B. Roosevelt, secretary, the league said its position in opposition to immediate payment of the adjusted compensation certificates was based on "three fundamental reasons."
"First, because the making of the approximately $2,300,000,000 required for immediate payment would impose an intolerable financial burden on the country, which would prolong the depression and unemployment."
"Second, because the demand is without fair basis or right on its face. It is, in effect, a demand for the immediate payment of that portion of the certificates represented by the interest on the credits allowed for home and overseas service. This interest, in greater part, has not yet been earned and its payment at this time would increase the cost to the government by about $1,500,000,000 over the amount originally voted by congress to be paid."
"Third, because a yielding to this demand would mark a surrender of the interests of the public at large to the dictation of an organized minority."

Forest Fire Fighters
New Organization
Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 26.—The forestry division of the department of forestry and geological development has inaugurated an organization of forest fire fighters to supplement the present Timber Protective Organizations. The new organization, according to State Forester B. M. Lufburg, is to provide for the needs of smaller land owners who desire to cooperate with each other in fighting such forest fires. The existing Timber Protective Organizations are operated on a minimum of ten thousand acres per unit and meet the needs of the large land owners. The new plan, according to the state forester, will provide for a 10,000-acre unit, and will provide leadership to carry out plans of fire fighting, as well as to establish local responsibility for fire control.
Some fire fighting equipment and instructions are being made for the fighting are included in the plan, according to the state forester.
The first unit of this type of organization has been formed in the region of Commerce by Prof. C. L. Veatch, agricultural vocational teacher, who was active in developing this plan of forest fire protection. Reports coming to the forestry division indicate that a number of communities are ready to join the new organization.

Spanish, like English, contains many words in which a very slight variation in pronunciation makes a wide difference in meaning. Governor Roosevelt, of Porto Rico, addressing a native audience in his recent imperfectly acquired Spanish, intended to refer to General Parker as a bachelor, but instead called him a tapeworm.
A note sent out from the state office before the summer institute are requested to return these by the forty-five county and city reports so far received show interesting items. But it is hoped that at least fifty per cent of the counties will submit reports that the findings may be definite.

West Side School
The West Side school will open for the fall term Monday, October 3rd. Every child is urged to enter the first day. Plans are being laid out for the best year the school has had.
Dean Z. S. Henderson, of the South Georgia Teachers College, will be the chapel speaker for the opening on Monday morning at 10 o'clock. We are expecting a large number of the patrons to be present at this exercise, which will begin promptly at 10 o'clock.
Monday will be used for registration and for a general clean-up program. Everybody bring something to work with. Let's get started off right for a good year.

Stilson School News
Stilson school has opened for the 1932-33 year under very favorable conditions for a good year.
There has been some changes in the faculty since last year. Our line of this year is: First grade, Miss Vivian Donaldson and Miss Juanita Bland; second grade, Miss Nina McElven; third grade, Miss Elizabeth Carter; fourth grade, Mrs. J. W. Upchurch; fifth grade, Miss Pearl Oliff; seventh grade, Miss Evelyn Anderson; high school, Miss Sarah Smith, Mrs. W. A. Groover and S. A. Driggers.
With an enrollment of 358 at the beginning and a daily increase, the outlook indicates the best year in the history of the school. The school is a common realization of a need for much work and a common resolution to meet this need.
E. C. I. News
The home economics department of this year is looking forward to many improvements. We, the second-year home economics class of Emanuel County Institute, have entered into this year's work with a new determination.
At our first meetings we elected our officers for the year and made preparation for getting the necessary equipment for cooking and serving. Each student has made a towel and embroidered their initials in the corner. Both home economics classes cleaned up the building and we are now ready to work. Our great aim is to be clean, sanitary maidens.

COOLIDGE TO HEAD
RAIL COMMISSION
NON-PARTISAN BODY TO STUDY TRANSPORTATION PROBLEMS OF THE NATION.
New York, Sept. 23.—Formation of a national railway commission, headed by former President Calvin Coolidge, was understood in Wall Street today to have been virtually completed and a formal announcement was expected within the next few days.
The commission, which is to make a thorough study of the national transportation problem with the view of recommending congressional action, is to be sponsored, it was said, by the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, other large financial institutions, insurance companies and important public organizations.
It was reported agreement had been reached on the following details:
1. The commission will be non-partisan and free in every respect and will act upon its own initiative in the inquiry.
2. The commissioners will receive no salaries nor other compensation for their work.
3. The railroads themselves will have no part in the formation of the commission nor its activities and will be asked to furnish information only through testimony and statistics.
4. The commission will particularly stress the point that it is representing no one organization or political party; that fundamentally, it is acting on behalf of the public and the thousands of security holders affected by the operations of the carriers.
5. The expenses of the inquiry will be provided by the various sponsoring organizations, and the initial sum to be provided for this purpose may be as much as $100,000, although this has not been actually decided.

GOVERNOR-ELECT TALMADGE
EXPECTED TO NAME HUGH HOWELL AT MACON MEET.
Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 26.—Hugh Howell, prominent Atlanta attorney, whose work in the recent gubernatorial campaign attracted such unusual attention and favorable comment, is slated for election as democratic state chairman to succeed Lawrence S. Macon October 5th.
Howell was the "unofficial" chairman of the steering committee which ran the Talmadge campaign and it is generally understood that he is the choice of Talmadge for the party leadership post.
Talmadge said in introducing Howell at a homecoming celebration in Macon following the election.
Talmadge will name the delegates to the convention and his advisors have stated that he would be largely made up of farmers. He will select the list of delegates from the state at large also.
Senator-elect J. H. Skelton, of Hartwell, has been tentatively picked for temporary chairman of the convention and, as such, he will deliver the keynote speech. U. S. Senator Alben W. Barkley, who key-noted at Chicago for the Democrats, is to make the principal speech.
Political observers also predicted that Talmadge would tender the post of secretary of the state committee, now held by Miss Stella Akin, of Savannah, to Mrs. Eva C. Drew. Mrs. Drew is his secretary as commissioner of agriculture and has lived in Atlanta a number of years.
Apparently there will be no discord in the convention, which is to be held in the first 25 years of its existence, but the second hundred million were built within a period of about five years.
The latest 25 million tires manufactured by Goodyear were built under the six-hour day plan, which was inaugurated by Goodyear in October, 1930, to furnish work to as many people as possible. Approximately 3,000 additional wage earners were thus given employment.
In the words of President P. W. Littlefield, of Goodyear: "If adopted today for work, the six-hour day would put millions of men into a position where they would be self-supporting."
Mr. Averitt had some interesting comparison figures on this production.
If all these tires were stacked one on top of another (figuring an average cross section of four and one-half inches) they would reach a pole into the sky, or 1,380 times higher than Professor Picard's balloon flight into the stratosphere.
Laid tangent to each other, the tires would encircle the earth nearly four times, or reach two-fifths of the way to the moon.
Averaging 10,000 miles per tire, the total mileage produced is three trillion miles, or more than enough to reach to the center and back to earth ten thousand times.
These tires would make up a train of 200,000 box cars, reaching over one-third the distance across the country.
Two billion pounds of crude rubber and nearly a billion pounds of cotton were used in the construction of this vast output of tires.
Furthermore, if a single motorist were to attempt to wear out this enormous production, it would require 400 million years of present average driving time.

Extortion Letter
Pleasantville, N. J., Sept. 26.—A letter-writing contest in public schools here led to the arrest of a suspect in a $2,000 extortion case here.
When threatening extortion letters were received by Anthony P. Miller, wealthy young Atlantic City contractor, a handwriting expert determined they were written by a person 14 to 15 years of age.
Chief of County Detectives Frank J. Harold, thereupon arranged for a letter-writing contest in the local schools, in which sixty letters were written, submitted to teachers and studied by police.
Simultaneously was found between the handwriting of 14-year-old Mildred Marinelli, high school pupil. Police say she admitted she wrote the letters to Miller, but did so at the dictation of her uncle, Ralph Lombardo, 60, who formerly worked for the contractor. Lombardo is now under arrest.

E. B. SIMMONS
E. B. Simmons, aged 82, died at the home of his son, Dr. W. E. Simmons, at Metter, Wednesday morning after an illness of more than a year. The body was brought to Statesboro for interment, which was in East Side cemetery at 11 o'clock today following services at the home of his son, Bill H. Simmons.
The deceased is survived by four sons, the two already mentioned and Clayton Simmons, of Candler county, and George W. Simmons, of Savannah, and Thomas, Ga. Five years ago she contracted flu, from the effects of which she never recovered. In pursuit of health she spent four years at a sanitarium in Asheville, but came home last fall without apparent benefit. Besides her parents she is survived by one brother, R. J. Kennedy Jr.

"Two hundred million is a lot of tires," remarked Fred Skelton, tire dealer, looking on the building of the 200 million pneumatic casing at the Goodyear factories in Akron, Ohio, was without a doubt an all-time production record.
The tire was built in the presence of executives of the company, September 12th, while newswriters and newspaper camera men recorded the outstanding production achievement in pictures.
The tire is to be started immediately on a tour of Goodyear branches throughout the country, after which it is to be returned to the tire museum of Goodyear at Akron, where the first tires produced at various other Goodyear factories are on exhibition, along with other products of the company, Mr. Averitt said.

JIM REED SURE PARTY WILL WIN

WHOLE WEST IS FOR ROOSEVELT FOR PRESIDENT, MISSOURI MAN SAYS.

New York, Sept. 30.—Although he described himself as "ordinarily a pessimist," former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, said Friday night when he was in the Brannen cemetery near Port, that he was certain Governor Roosevelt would be elected.

"I know that's not news," he added, sitting beside National Democratic Chairman James A. Farley in national headquarters, "but you can take it as confirmation, as accumulated evidence."

ALFRED E. SMITH TO BE FORGOTTEN MAN

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30.—Democrats reluctantly assigned Alfred E. Smith to the role of "forgotten man" in their campaign scheme with the apparently conclusive proof that his editorial pen tonight that he will not forget his grievance against Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt.

They had hoped Smith finally would come out wholeheartedly for Roosevelt. But Smith's refusal in his first New Outlook editorial to mention the Democratic presidential candidate, his pointed condemnation of the "forgotten man" phrase to which Roosevelt returns so often, and his reference to some "elements and forces" in the party which he deplored, all seem to prove that Smith cannot forget his defeat at the Chicago convention and what went before that.

GIVES BIG PRAISE TO TARIFF SPEECH

NEW YORK TIMES SAYS THE SPEECH OF ROOSEVELT IS FILLED WITH SENSE.

Washington, Oct. 3.—"Governor Roosevelt is talking good sense and good business," declares the New York Times in its editorial comment on the Democratic nominee's tariff speech, even in the absence of the doctrine of special privilege, Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah.

"Has not Governor Roosevelt the fear of Senator Smoot before his eyes?" the Times asks. "When the Democratic candidate first began talking of his party's plank in favor of making with several countries agreements for reciprocal trade, the Utah senator rebuked him. Did not the governor of New York know of our existing commercial treaties with several nations, by which we are bound to give to them any legislation which we might accord to others?"

Doubtless Mr. Roosevelt did know of them. Doubtless he also knew that they could be terminated on due notice. What Senator Smoot had in mind was, of course, our long-angled doctrine about 'most-favored-nation treatment.' But this is in the way of being abolished by the British government and by others, so that it ought to be soon possible for the United States to resume and act upon its old interpretation of that clause in the receding past.

"For a long time our government did not admit it to be a bar to reciprocity arrangements. In fact, it sought and obtained several of them. When Mr. Blaine was secretary of state, and in later years, reciprocity became a kind of emollient in the hands of the Republicans to abate the irritation caused by our high protective tariff. There is really no reason why this country should not go back to its historic view that special bargains can be made between two nations without having to extend the same to all other nations."

Indeed, our present embarrassment in the matter of foreign commerce furnishes a new and powerful argument why we should go back to it.

"At any rate, Governor Roosevelt is talking good sense and good business. He fully realizes that we must do everything within our power to recover our lost position in foreign markets. If, without a general revision of our obstructive tariff, we can manage to grant a few reductions from it in return for particular concessions for the advantage of our export trade, it seems an obvious step to take. It cannot be that Americans have lost their flair for seizing opportunities and drawing through good bargains. It is to that one recognized ability and reputation of his countrymen that Governor Roosevelt appealed in his speech at Seattle. Unless they have forgotten how to be good traders, his words will not be without effect during the campaign and after it."

Ogeechee Association In Two-Day's Session

An interesting program for the two-day session of the Ogeechee River Baptist Association is in progress here, having convened Wednesday morning. Dinner was served at the church yesterday and will be again today by the local membership.

The final exercises of the session will be at 2 o'clock this afternoon, when reports on denominational work will be submitted and addresses will be given by Guy H. Wells, A. E. Fulmer, Leroy Cowart and Mrs. Kermit Carr on various phases of church activity.

TATNALL FARMER STUDIES TUNG OIL

J. W. SMITH FINDS INTERESTING POSSIBILITIES IN NEW INDUSTRY.

Readers of the Times will be interested in a statement by Rev. Joseph W. Smith, former resident of Statesboro and one-time pastor of the Statesboro Baptist church, touching the possibilities of a new industry for South Georgia. Rev. Mr. Smith, who now lives at Reidsville, has recently visited Florida, where the tung oil industry has been given more or less consideration.

The following statement is from the Tattall Journal, Reidsville:

Mr. Jos. W. Smith spent several days last week in Grady and Brooks counties investigating the tung tree industry. He saw several young orchards which were set this year and some older, up to six years. The most advanced orchards are in Ocala, Florida, especially around Gainesville. There are a few large orchards in Grady county but recently set, a few new bearing fruit.

One well-titled orchard just bore 6,000 pounds of nuts per acre last year.

He saw two-year-old trees bearing a crop of nuts, which he estimated at March killed nearly all the blooms.

One grower shipped 18,000 pounds of seed to New Zealand and 4,000 pounds to Africa this last winter for account of the British government.

The nuts produce the finest oil for paints, varnishes and for making waterproof cloth. For these purposes $15,000,000 worth of this oil, all that could be had, was imported last year by the United States from China, the native land of the tung tree.

People in South Georgia are planting these trees about the residences and in odd places where they grow well without cultivation.

There is practically no limit to the development of the tung tree industry. Smith, and orchards of hundreds of acres are planted and being planted in South Georgia and Florida.

One man has 20,000 trees growing and has bought 30,000 more to be planted this winter.

As the difference in climate between Tattall and South Georgia is negligible, Mr. Smith believes it is quite certain the tung tree will thrive here and become a remunerative source of cash income.

Mr. Smith was informed that 50,000 trees in Tattall advanced to six or eight years old will make a tung nut crop of $100 per acre.

Smith back into the fold, Democratic leaders now have resigned themselves to mark off whatever Republicans may gain from his attitude, and to forget him as a campaign factor. His influence never was a considerable one in the West and South. In 1928 he did not carry a single state of the Mississippi, where Roosevelt seems to be winning favor. But Democratic strategists did hope for his help in the East.

Smith's editorial, which is little more than a re-statement of views he expressed in his famous "no demagogue" speech here at the Jackson Day dinner prior to the Chicago convention, coincided with developments in New York which may affect Democratic chances in that state for whose forty-seven electoral votes both sides are fighting so bitterly.

Smith's criticism of Roosevelt from his editorial chair follows his declaration to write an article for the Saturday Evening Post, on "The Democratic Case," to match a Republican article by ex-President Calvin Coolidge. It was generally understood that Smith refused because he could not bring himself to say anything kindly about Roosevelt. Coolidge praised Mr. Hoover highly.

There have been various reports that the 1928 candidate would do this and that in the way of supporting Roosevelt. But such help has failed thus far to materialize. He is scheduled to make a speech before the state Democratic convention next Monday, and it has been reported some word would come from him at that time touching on Roosevelt.

A group of leaders went to him a few weeks ago with the plea that he come out one way or another in order to remove the mystery that was interfering with the campaign. It was understood he would comply with their request. The editorial may be the answer.

Mrs. Lane will receive contributions in any amount and will give proper credit to all who contribute. She has placed "mite boxes" at various places (one is at the Bulloch Times office) for the convenience of any person who may be willing to donate to the cause of Democracy.

An improved and economical method of heating water for household use has been developed by Prof. C. M. Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

LOCAL RED CROSS WORKERS CONFER

THIRTEEN COUNTIES REPRESENTED AT CONFERENCE IN STATESBORO TUESDAY.

More than sixty delegates, representing thirteen counties in South Georgia, attended a regional Red Cross conference at Statesboro Tuesday, besides the Bulloch county delegates, there were representatives from Glynn, Wayne, Brantley, Richmond, Treutlen, Jenkins, Toombs, Camden, Chatham, Wheeler, Effingham and Ware counties. Richmond county came strongest with eleven delegates, Camden and Effingham had four each and Chatham six.

The forenoon exercises were held in the Methodist church, beginning at 10 o'clock, when the address of welcome was delivered by Mayor J. L. Renfro and the invocation by Rev. E. F. Morgan, pastor of the church. The program included an address by W. C. Hunt, assistant manager of the Western area, and a discussion led by Mrs. Lucy Washburn, field representative, in which discussion the delegates took active part.

The luncheon, served by the Woman's Club at 1 o'clock, E. M. Monts, former chairman of the Bulloch county chapter, presided, and another word of welcome was extended by Guy Wells of the South Georgia Teachers College. Mrs. R. L. Cone, of the Woman's Club committee, directed the serving of the meal, which was a most elegant one.

At the dinner conference Mr. Hunt discussed "The Red Cross in the Present Emergency," and J. Phil Campbell of Athens spoke on the need for co-operation in the solution of the present agricultural crisis.

Visiting officials were enthusiastic over the attendance at the conference, which is declared to have been the best attended of any so far held in the state. There have been four such conferences planned at different points in the state.
